

2. Gilboa Fossil Trees

In a small State Park are the fossil remains of the Gilboa Trees -- rare fossils which were discovered during the construction of the Gilboa Reservoir Dam. These fossils were giant cycads or tree fern like plants which lived about million years ago. The Hamilton shale and sandstone beds are a dominant feature of the upper reaches of the Schoharie Valley.

