

Bozen Kill High Falls

The high falls of the Bozen Kill is higher than 80 feet. Its head powered the Van Otten Grist Mill which was located at the base of the Falls.

The rocks over which the falls plunged consisted of hard layers of the Ordovician beds termed the Schenectady Shales and sandstones. They have very few fossils in this region.

