

50. Harrisburg Lake

This is a lake which is about as far from the "beaten track" as one can get by road. For many years it was the center of a group of settlers who sought to wrest a living from the sandy soil of this part of the Adirondacks. It was also a center of lumbering, hunting and fishing.

