

77. John Brown's Grave and Farm

This State Monument is a lonely place even when there are visitors around. The grave of John Brown, the Abolitionist, has an appropriate marker and his mountain home which he rarely used has been restored to the simple abode of an Adirondack native.

It is a picturesque place with its flat fields and distant mountains.

